The history of statistics in the modern sense originates from the term statistics, coined in 1749 in Germany. Although there have been changes to the interpretation of the word over time. The development of statistics is intimately connected on the one hand with the development of sovereign states, particularly European states following the Peace of Westphalia (1648); and the other hand with ...

Paul, good luck with that. Considering the depth and breadth of my study since my teen years (30 years ago), I'd say I've likely seen the evidence available for that claim and rejected it as either too full of superstition and short on substantiation, or mistaken on the death claim, a huckster preacher.
